

OTHER CITIES FALL BEFORE THE REBELS WHO KEEP UP FIGHT

CHINESE REVOLUTIONISTS PLAN TO TAKE CITY AFTER CITY IN EXHAUSTIVE CAMPAIGN.

A GENERAL IS KILLED

General Feng Shang, Commander of Imperial Garrison at Canton, Was Assassinated Today—Canton on Verge of Rebellion.

Shanghai, China, Oct. 25.—The capture of Chang Chou by revolutionists was announced in dispatches this afternoon. The capture apparently cuts off from Peking all imperial troops now around Hankow and Wu Chang. News from the lower Yangtze valley was all discouraging to the government. It is hinted here that Yuan Shikai, whose "fame" prevented his acceptance of the government's commission to put down the rebellion, may be induced to give the rebel cause active support against the Manchurian dynasty. Yuan everywhere is regarded as the man of the hour in China.

General Is Killed.
[BY UNITED PRESS.]
General Feng Shang, military commander of the Chinese Imperial garrison at Canton and several of his escorts, were killed by a bomb thrown by revolutionists today, according to advices received here. Several bombs were thrown at him from a roof. Canton is on the verge of a rebellion. Troops there cannot be relied upon. The town of Chien Chow, a strategic point, was captured by rebels today without a struggle. From Peking comes the news that the imperial court is prepared to flee at a moment's notice to Jo Jai, one of the imperial palaces, 120 miles north of the capital.

Manchu in Flight.
The rebel capture of Tchen Chow cuts the Imperial troops in the vicinity of Hankow and Wu Chang from communication with Peking. Convinced that Wu Hui and Nakh will fall within a few hours, Manchu officials from both cities are fleeing to Shanghai to escape massacre.

On to Shanghai.
It is declared the intention of the revolutionary leaders to gradually take over city after city, linking various centers already in their possession, and thus push north to Shanghai. Ku Kiang will probably be the revolutionary capital.

Rebels Advance.
Peking, Oct. 25.—A wireless report states that the rebels have advanced to Hsiao Hsiao creek today and have engaged the enemy in an extended skirmish. It is impossible, as yet, to estimate the importance of the engagement.

Ranking to Surrender.
Nanking, who is momentarily expected to surrender. The Chinese government is not only threatened by overthrow by revolutionists but is sorely pressed for money, there being less than $500,000 in the treasury.

M. for an automobile trip around the lakes. He will arrive in St. Paul at 3 P. M.

Between Two Factions.
At breakfast today the president sat as a dividing bulge between insurgents and standpaters. On his right were Senator Knute Nelson and former Representative Tweney, standpaters and friends. On the other side sat Theodore Clapp, who is leading the La Follette movement in Minnesota. At the end of the table sat insurgent Representative Davis. All broke bread together and there was no spirit of enmity apparent.

The point at issue is whether the United States circuit court for western Washington has power to dismiss an indictment against the defendants.

BURNS DETECTIVES ATTEMPT TO PROVE LABOR UNION PLOT

Purpose of Prosecution Becoming Plain as Task of Empanelling a Jury Progresses—Four Verdicts Agreed Upon.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 25.—It is becoming more and more certain as the wearisome task of empanelling a jury to try James H. McSweeney continues that it is merely the prelude of an attempt on the part of the Burns detective agency to prove the existence of an inner circle within the American Federation of Labor which countenances and finances acts of violence.

This was made especially certain several times today by narrow questioning when the defense attorneys demanded whether they considered labor leaders a lawless element who advocated violence in bringing about redress to their demands by employers. There are now in the jury box four men passed by both sides.

LUITPOLD'S ILLNESS SOURCE OF ANXIETY

It is Feared That Bavaria's "Grand Old Man" Will Not Recover From His Attack of Acute Bronchitis.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Berlin, Oct. 25.—The serious illness of Prince Luitpold, the regent of Bavaria, is a cause of considerable anxiety in official circles in Berlin as well as in Munich. In view of his great age he is now in his ninety-first year. It is feared that the Prince will not recover from his present attack of acute bronchitis.

These passing of Bavaria's "Grand Old Man" will be sincerely regretted by all who have the welfare of the German empire at heart. For a quarter of a century, Luitpold has been the actual sovereign of Bavaria. The Prince's King Otto, his nephew, has been all this time under restraint. Prince Luitpold, a man of solid abilities, has carried on the business of the state to the general satisfaction. Considering the constant jealousy with which Bavaria, the second German state in population and resources regards Prussia, the regent has had a delicate task at times, but he has always been equal to it, and his influence has been exerted for the preservation of that "unity" which is essential to the well-being of Germany.

Prince Luitpold has led an active and eventful life ever since 1855, when he began his active service in the army. He fought against the Prussians in the war of 1866 and with them against France five years later. It was he who overcame the hesitation of his eccentric nephew, King William of Prussia to assume the crown and title of German Emperor. Luitpold was chosen by the rulers of the various German states to submit to King William the German imperial crown, and ever since that time Luitpold has never for a moment wavered in his loyalty to the German Empire.

More than twenty years after the establishment of the empire the divergence of views between the two sections of Northern and Southern Germany became so pronounced that the Hohenzollerns felt the need of planting Southern German sentiment by some conspicuous appointment that appealed to its pride. When in 1891 Prince Hohenzollern, a distinguished Bavarian, was called to the chancery of the empire, the appointment was less a tribute to his high abilities than a concession to Bavaria and the neighboring states. In the same year Luitpold was named as regent of Bavaria and the appointment gratified both national and progressive sentiments. Correspondingly, it rendered Prince Luitpold's work easier.

PURPOSE OF MEETING WAS NOT POLITICAL

MATT J. REGAN ON STAND TODAY GIVES FURTHER TESTIMONY REGARDING APPOINTMENT WITH SHIELDS.

INQUIRY WILL CLOSE

Sensor Heyburn Stated That Investigation Would End Early Part of Next Week—Will Not Meet on Friday.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 25.—The alleged meeting in Milwaukee between Bob Shields, Stephenson's agent, and Matt J. Regan, prominent Milwaukee democrat, as sworn to by Regan and others, occupied the attention of the Stephenson investigation committee today. Regan, continuing on the stand today reiterated that his meeting with Shields was to talk over business other than politics, although the legislative situation was discussed.

Shields, who testified last week, was recalled and would not deny meeting Regan and talking business and politics generally. His recollection of the meeting was hazy, although he admitted Regan might have been telling the truth.

Close Next Week.
Chairman Heyburn announced that the investigation would close in Milwaukee early next week and that the committee would not convene on Friday because of President Taft's visit here. He also declared that the trunk of Stephenson, in which correspondence was found, must be accounted for step by step as well as any of the missing papers.

Regan, in his testimony today, charged Frank J. Wagner, who went to the state's prison for alleged perjury, with stealing two telegrams sent him by Shields in relation to the Stephenson case.

Others Testify.
W. J. Somers, fire and police commissioner of Superior, followed Regan on the stand today. He denied having a conversation with C. H. Grayburn in which he is alleged to have said money was used in Stephenson's election. Chairman Heyburn announced that a number of witnesses held themselves ready to testify. Among them from outside of Milwaukee were David Atwood, Janesville; W. J. Somers, Superior; J. Earl Morgan, Oshkosh; J. A. Stone, Redwood; Senator Paul Hastings, Mayville; former Assemblyman Jas. Fendler, Ripon; and S. A. Towne, La Valle.

WILSON TO TALK ON SOCIAL CENTER IDEA

Candidate For Democratic Presidential Nomination on Program of Social Conference at Madison.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—With an opening address by Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey on "The Need of Citizenship Organization," the most notable conference ever held in America to consider the problems of the social center movement gets under way here tonight for a three days' session. Hundreds of delegates arrived today to take part in the conference, which meets under the joint auspices of the extension department of the University of Wisconsin and the Social Center Association of America.

The proceedings are certain to attract widespread attention, for no other reason than that the conference is the first national gathering ever held for the purpose of furthering the social center movement. If the hopes of those interested in the movement are fulfilled the new future will see every school house in the country made a public meeting place for non-partisan gatherings of citizens for the presentation and discussion of public questions and for other social, civic or recreational activities.

In addition to Governor Wilson the prominent speakers to be heard at the several sessions include Senator Moses Clapp of Minnesota, Dean H. L. Russell of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, Clarence A. Perry of the Russell Sage Foundation, Dr. John H. Commons of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, Lyle S. Richard of Boston, and Dr. G. E. Young, health commissioner of Chicago.

The conference will conclude Saturday evening with a banquet at which counts will be responded to by William Allen White, Colonel S. S. McClure, Dr. Joseph Strong, Miss Zona Gale, Frank P. Walsh and Mrs. David Kirk, the first woman school superintendent in America.

SECOND AUTOPSY IS MADE ON THE BODY OF AVIS LINNELL

Missing Phil of Poison Not Found in Murdered Girl's Bathrobe—New Theories Are Advanced by Police.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—A second autopsy was made today on the body of Avis Linnell. The mystery also deepened with the failure to find any trace of poison in the pockets of the bathrobe exhumed yesterday with the girl's body at Hyannis, her home, and brought here.

The result of the second autopsy will not be known until the contents of the stomach and organs have been analyzed. Failure to find the poison in the girl's bathrobe has puzzled the police to know how she could have disposed of the bottle or paper which contained the cyanide of potassium. They admit that this point against Rev. C. V. T. Hedgeson, her alleged slayer, is materially weak.

The theory is now advanced by the police that Miss Linnell was given the drug in a gelatin capsule. This may also, the police declare, explain failure of the drug to kill the girl instantly, for it may have taken the capsule some time to dissolve after she swallowed it.

Medical Advisor Leary and District Attorney Peffer declared positively the first autopsy showed beyond question that it was the cyanide and not some other drug that caused death. Immediately after the second autopsy the cadaver was sealed and the body shipped back to Hyannis for burial.

Poison in Powder Form.
District Attorney Peffer announced this afternoon that the autopsy performed on the body of Avis Linnell developed the fact that she died from cyanide of potassium, presumably taken in powder form.

The fact that it was powdered cyanide that caused death, the police declare, bears out their theory that the drug was given the girl in a capsule. The defense today demanded permission to examine the body either here or at Hyannis.

MADISON MAY BOOM COMMISSION PLAN

Mayor Schubert is Leading a Movement to Install Commission Government at Capital City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—Mayor Joseph C. Schubert is leading in a movement to install the commission form of government in this city. A campaign of education has been started and public meetings to advance the cause will be held. The mayor is nearing the close of his third term, when he plans to retire.

"In one year in Madison we handle over $1,000,000 in carrying on the municipal government," he said. "By no stretch of the imagination can any one picture any corporation spending that amount of money picking at random twenty men to handle its business affairs. Men competent in their line and well paid for their full time would be chosen. There is no reason why a municipality should not be equally careful in selecting men to make its business affairs a success."

REPORTS TERRIBLE CONDITION OF CITY WRECKED BY FLOOD

Alexander E. Matheson Tells of Need
Existing at Black River Falls—Calls Meeting of Officers of Grand Lodge.

Alexander E. Matheson returned yesterday from his inspection trip to Black River Falls in the interest of the Grand Lodge of Masons, and reports that the conditions and sufferings are so great that he, as Grand master of the order in this city, will call a meeting of the officers in Milwaukee tomorrow to discuss the possibility of further aid.

Following his visit to the stricken city the amount added to the Janesville relief fund by Messrs. Whitehead and Matheson was increased today by $20. It is planned that should the total amount of money collected here amount to enough by tomorrow, it will be forwarded to Black River Falls authorities.

Mr. Matheson's statement of the conditions there is as follows: "The disaster at Black River Falls is appalling, and cannot be described. One must see the evidences of the calamity with his own eyes in order to appreciate the magnitude of it. Forty acres of land which a few weeks ago was occupied with business blocks, factories, and residences, was washed away, to a depth of from twenty to thirty feet, in a few hours. The money lost, in buildings and contents, is estimated at one million dollars. The value of the land has been estimated at four hundred to five hundred thousand, making a total loss of a million and a half dollars.

"The disaster was not due to the heavy rainfall. They had often had rain in that region greater than that which preceded the flood. The disaster was due to the dams above Black River Falls on Black river, one the Dells dam and the other the first field dam. These two dams held back a head of water from forty to fifty feet. The approaches or wings of the dams gave way, permitting the water to rush around the dams and down the river in mighty volume and with terrific force. The city is subject to further disaster unless the approaches to these dams are properly repaired and constructed.

"The banks of the river, for miles below Black River Falls, are strewn with wreckage. It is said that some farms have been covered with such a thick coating of sand as practically to destroy their value for agricultural purposes. The current of the water was so strong and high at one time, and the volume so great, as to carry a hundred and ten foot span of the iron bridge which crossed the river at Black River Falls down the river like a child's boat, casting it high and low in the water. It is estimated that it traveled a distance of eighty or a hundred miles before it was wrecked.

"No one in Black River Falls is suffering for immediate necessities. Contributions have been made sufficient to provide for the present sustenance of the people, but they are only at the beginning of their troubles. They have a whole winter before them and the entire business district of the city must be rebuilt. When rebuilt, it will probably be on high ground and away from the river. The people must not only be fed and clothed throughout the winter, but the business of the city must be re-established, and this will require financial aid.

"All of the citizens of Black River Falls have suffered financial loss, directly or indirectly. Many have lost all that they possessed in the world, in some cases the figures reaching seventy-five or eighty thousand dollars. Many of them, in addition to the loss of everything, are deeply in debt. "A serious situation, not very much mentioned in the public press, is at all times the condition of Black River Falls as a municipality. The city owns the dam across the river, a part of which was blown out to reduce the disaster of the flood. It also owned the power plant connected with the dam, which supplied power to a number of manufacturing institutions. The city also owns the waterworks and electric light plant. It is unable to make use of this power without the expenditure of considerable money. Concrete abutments should be built to protect the banks of the river from further washings in time of high water. The majority of the citizens are unable to pay this year's taxes, having absolutely nothing wherewith to pay.

"The supervisor of assessment has estimated that two-thirds of the taxable property of the city was destroyed. The city is without credit to borrow money and it cannot issue additional bonds. It must have assistance, in some manner, from forty to fifty thousand dollars, in order to restore its dam and rehabilitate its power and electric light plants.

The people are bearing their troubles with a fine spirit. They are meeting the difficulties serenely; and, on the whole, they are united and courageous, determined to bring victory out of disaster.

"They need help, and must have it in abundance. This help will come when the citizens of Wisconsin really appreciate their needs.

"There is a local relief committee, made up wholly or largely of women, which is acting under the direction of the state committee appointed by the governor. A representative of the state committee visits Black River Falls every two or three days. Funds that are collected should be disbursed through the governor's committee.

Contributions to the relief fund received at The Gazette office to date is as follows:

J. A. Kipp	2.00
J. M. Hostwick and Sons	$50.00
P. Hohmann & Co.	$15.00
Gazette Printing Co.	$10.00
James Pritchard	10.00
Miss Ida Harlan	5.00
Whitehead & Matheson	25.00
B. T. Fish	5.00
John Fitzgerald	5.00

Brodhead, Oct. 25.—There will be a meeting held in Brodhead Friday morning, October 27, at 9:30 o'clock to consider the feasibility of putting the county line road, north and south, into shape for the use of the public. A. R. Hirst, highway engineer of the Wisconsin Highway commission of Madison, M. M. Hulbert, county highway commissioner of Green county, Mr. Jones, county commissioner of Rock county and chairman of the town board of Albany, Decatur, Spring Grove, Avon, Spring Valley and Magnolia, will be here and will be taken over the road in an automobile that all may learn the conditions of these pieces of roadway. A dinner will be served to the guests by the business men's association at The North.

Culvert in Place.
On the county line road near what is known as the Bucklin property a large steel culvert has been put in place where a large mud hole has been in existence for some months. A large number of loads of gravel have been hauled in to the depth of eighteen inches and a roadway graded up to it. About $300 was raised in cash and work for this job and it is a credit to the promoters.

Repair Bridge.
The Clarence bridge is receiving repairs in the way of large piles and new cement abutments.

An Eventful Night.

Last night at the yards will be one that will be remembered by Callie Robert Erdmann for a long time to come. Erdmann usually has the day caller's job but on account of the illness of the night foreman, Emil Lempe, he was on the night shift. He had been busy engaged in different parts of the shop all night and as he had almost more work than he could handle, he was in a very nervous condition. As it was, however, nothing of importance occurred until about 3:45 this morning, when one of the two sections of Rinsling Brothers' engines passed that way on the return to winter quarters at Babylon.

"Hobbs" happened to be near the track when it passed and someone called out one of the cars that one of the animals had just escaped and for him to watch out. After the train had passed it so happened that a strange dog snatched across the tracks directly in front of Erdmann and in the darkness it looked for all the world like a wolf or wild cat. As Erdmann was very nervous and having been told that an animal had escaped, he at once jumped to the conclusion that the thing he saw was the animal in question. Without stopping to investigate matters he immediately set out at a rapid rate of speed—something he seldom ever does—in the direction of the roundhouse.

The dog was a very affectionate one and took it very granted that Erdmann was playing with him, and immediately started in the same direction. By the time Erdmann had reached the roundhouse the vicious animal had almost caught up to him. The roundhouse doors happened to be closed so "Dob" took the next best way out of it and climbed to the top of the building.

There is a big headlight placed where he happened to step and then he finally summoned up courage to turn around to face his pursuer.

He thought that nobody witnessed the near tragedy, but one of the men saw it, and when Erdmann returned to the office he had resumed his self-composure sufficiently to finish his duties.

"Pink Boodle" Winkle, better known as the "Waukegan Dutchman," was on the Sunset Limited today in the capacity of fireman. "Mauro" Smith was at the throttle.

Conductor Anderson, the baseball enthusiast, has returned to his duties this morning and will hereafter be known as "Shulte," owing to the noted resemblance between him and that noted ball player of that name. He was visiting his relatives in Indiana.

Engine 1148, pulling train 503, broke a trailing bar at the passenger depot last night and had to be taken to the South Janesville shops for repairs. Engine 1146 took the train forward.

Conductor McKimney is in the Windy City today.

The interior of the passenger depot is being cleaned and repainted today and will be a great improvement when finished.

J. Johnson Fish is on the job as caller today.

Engineer Wooding and Fireman Smith are on the 7:00 switch engine today.

Fireman Pat Davey is in Chicago today taking a time card examination.

Engineer J. Lewis is on 534, 541, today.

Engineer Cole is on 534, 537, today.

William Sullivan, better known as "Uncle Bill," has been making a record in regard to the number of days worked this month and also on never having missed the shop car in the morning. But he met his Waterloo this morning, owing to one of the usual functions in the city last night, and when the car left this morning for the shops it left William behind. He must have over-slept but he showed up at about eight o'clock, telling the boys that the car must have left earlier than usual.

Engineer Wilson and Fireman Nelson took out Engine 936 this morning as an extra to Chicago.

Engine 1328, with Engineer Jewell and Fireman Moore went to Fond du Lac early this morning.

The matter will not be determined until it has come before the board engineers of the road. Brick pavement has been ordered for the street but work will not be started until next spring.

SERIOUS CONDITION OF MRS. BRADLEY

Suffered For Two Years Until Tona Vita Brought Improvement.

"No one but those who have suffered like I have know how miserable I have been the past two years," declared Mrs. Edward Bradley, of 2707 Carnegie avenue, Cleveland, in discussing the value of "Tona Vita," the remarkable new tonic.

"I had stomach trouble," continued Mrs. Bradley, "and was nervous and completely run down all the time. The slightest noise or exertion would startle me, and I suffered with palpitation of the heart, which would flutter and beat rapidly for minutes afterward."

"While in such a state fainting spells would overcome me and my condition would alarm my family. I had no ambition and my household duties became a drudgery. I suffered with headaches of the most violent type; my back continually pained me, and I would frequently faint in my helpless, hopeless condition, like sleepwalking at the top of my voice for some relief."

"Several neighbors urged me to try 'Tona Vita,' and I finally yielded. 'The effect of 'Tona Vita' in my case was immediate. I had scarcely taken three doses before I felt relief and began to improve. I have now taken two bottles and I feel and act like a new woman. I must look improved, too, for my friends all tell me that I look as young as a girl. The past week has been the happiest I've spent in two years. I shall tell all suffering women and men I see about this new medicine. It certainly produces results, and I feel grateful."

"Thousands of men and women in all cities like Janesville are suffering with the same run-down, listless, depressed condition which is produced by over-worked nerves, an overworked brain and an overworked stomach, say the physicians who are introducing 'Tona Vita.' 'There is something behind this all,' however," continue these physicians "and it is nothing other than the strain of modern city life and an artificial environment. Every day of their lives these people are exceeding nature's limitation and they go carelessly along, neglecting to take time to even realize the serious results until it is too late and debility has set in its most damaging form. Nervousness, sleeplessness, imperfect digestion, stomach and bowel troubles, constipation, poor circulation, cold feet, listlessness, loss of energy and ambition and depression are characteristic symptoms of this trouble, which will be quickly and permanently removed by our preparation."

Smith Drug Co., have secured the agency for "Tona Vita" in Janesville and the celebrated tonic is now on sale at their store.

OBITUARY.

August Dorkenhausen.

Funeral services for the late deceased August Dorkenhausen were held yesterday afternoon at the home of his son in the town of Plymouth, Wis., services at the home being at 1:30 p.m. and the church services at 2:30 p.m. The Rev. Koerner officiated. The funeral was a very large one and many flowers were in evidence. The pallbearers were John Zobel, John Swaid, Michael Horkey, John Kittle, Fred Towse, and Fred Bunkirk. The remains were laid to rest in the Plymouth cemetery.

John Weiss.

John Weiss, a resident of Janesville for the last thirty years, and who for sixteen years has conducted a tailor shop on West Milwaukee street over the Frank Baack clothing store, died at 5:30 o'clock last evening at his home on North Jackson street. The cause of death was apoplexy and he was fifty-five years old.

The deceased leaves to mourn his passing a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Edward Prose, and Miss Nellie Weiss; one brother, Joseph, living in Milwaukee, and one grand-daughter.

The funeral will be held at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home, 114 North Jackson street, the Rev. Father Henry Wilhelm, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, officiating.

Little Neighborliness There.

New York is a big city. A lady who has not lived there long was invited to a luncheon given by an old friend who came from the same town several years ago. The new guest met unexpectedly at the luncheon seven of her sex, all of whom live within a few blocks of her residence, and all of whom had lived in the town from which she came.

FROM TEXAS

Some Coffee Facts From the Lone Star State.

From a beautiful farm down in Texas, where gushing springs unite to form babbling brooks that wind their sparkling way through flowery meads, comes a note of gratitude for delivery from the coffee habit.

"When my baby boy came to me five years ago, I began to drink Postum, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of druggist coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing, healthy baby 11 months."

"I have since continued the use of Postum for I have grown fond of it, and have discovered to my joy that it has entirely relieved me of a bilious habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing much discomfort to my family and suffering to myself."

"My brother-in-law was cured of chronic constipation by leaving off coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it than he was of the old coffee."

"In fact the entire family, from the latest arrival, a seven-year-old who always calls for his 'pottie' first thing in the morning up to the head of the household, think there is no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Cutting Out Annoyances.

It is not selfish to cut out annoyances. Generally it means the highest good of those who must live with us. The woman who can be fretted and not vent it on some one else, either actively or unknowingly, is as rare that for the peace of her friends who should come to be annoyed if within her power.

More Hygienic Than Tent.

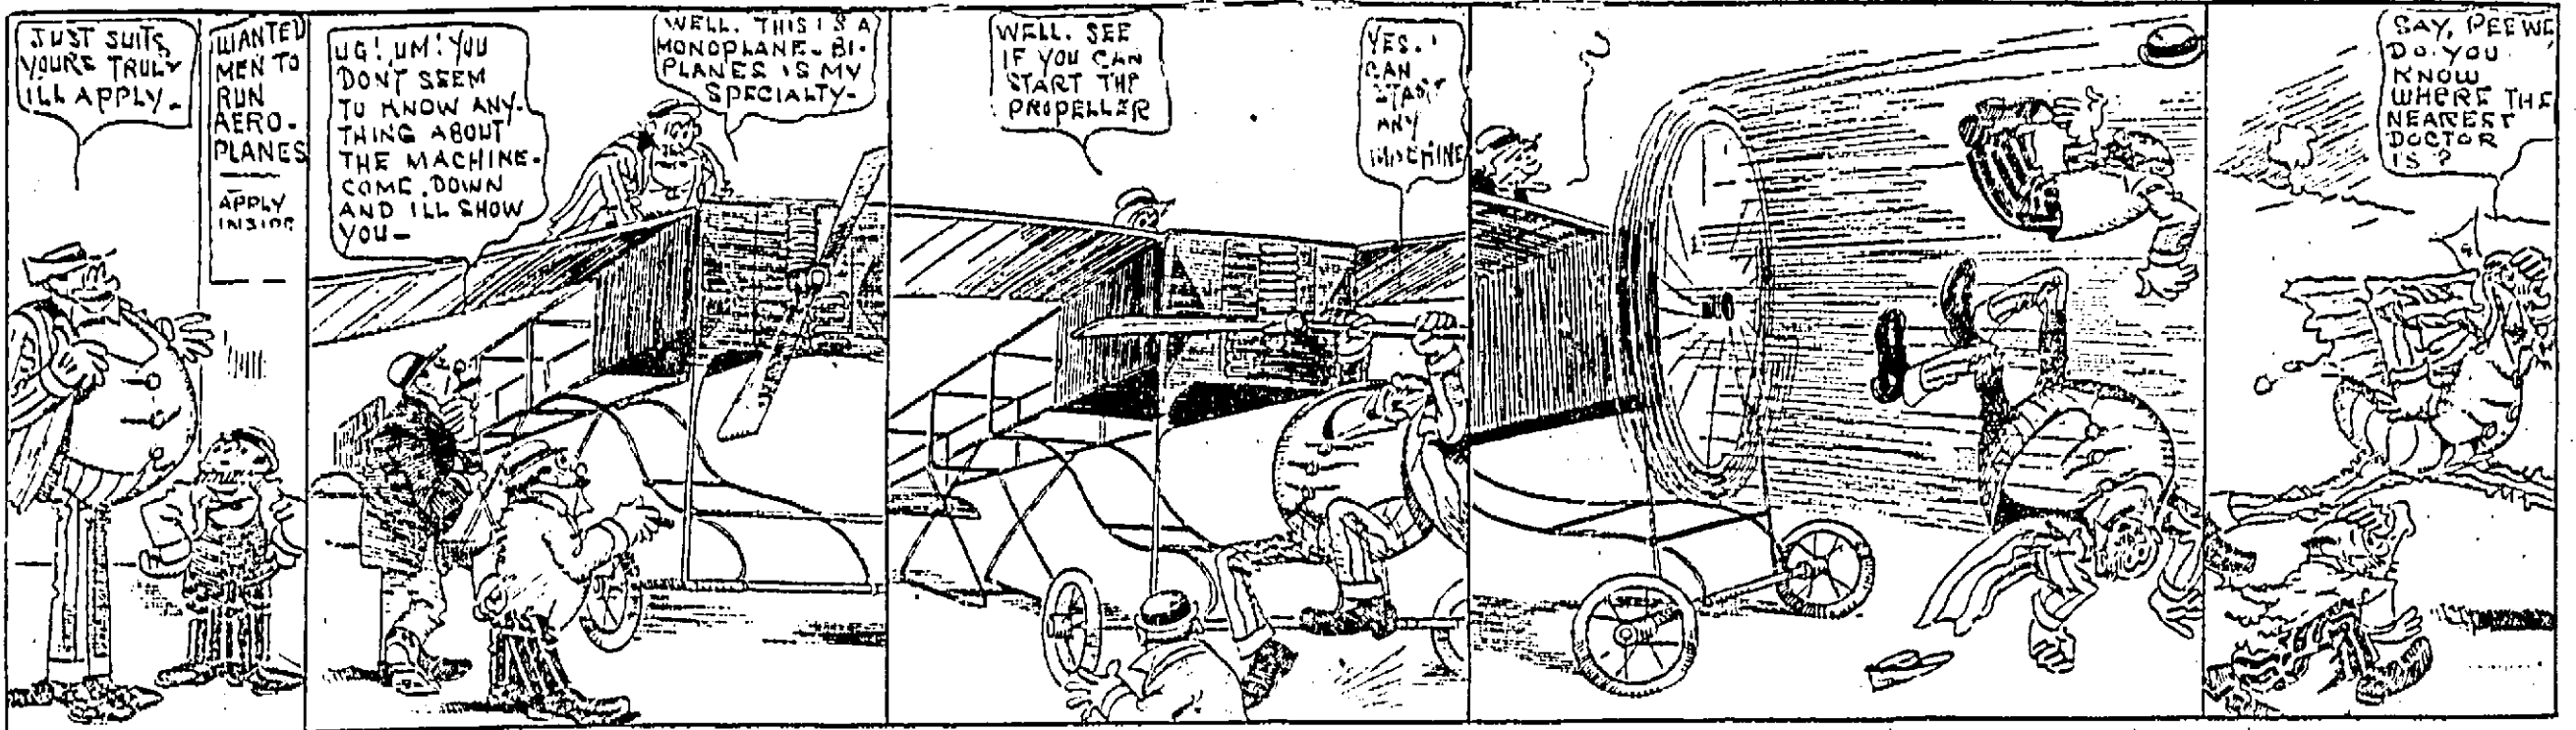

The common notion that a tent is especially hygienic is incorrect. A tent is far less hygienic than a wooden shack, because the air is more confined and there are no windows to open. The best shelter for invalids camping in a dry region, like the Arizona desert, is made of four posts supporting wire netting, into which branches of some tree have been woven, leaving just enough light to read by.

Our Luck.

We all have more good luck than bad; if we didn't most men would have legs or arms cut off or be in the penitentiary.—E. W. Howe.

BUICK AND OVERLAND PLAN ANOTHER RACEPRIELIPP WON RACE AFTER OVERLAND HAD BEEN DISABLED.

AUTO STRIKES CROWD

One Man Slightly Injured as Buick Machine Skids Into Crowd of Spectators on Inside of Track.

In spite of the accident which disabled the Overland car in yesterday's race the backers will make a side bet of any amount up to one thousand dollars on a race to be pulled off between the same two cars next Wednesday afternoon. Owing to the fact that Horn struck a soft place at the edge of the track and tore off a wheel after he had gained a lead of about an eighth of a mile in the middle of the second lap, the Overland did not have a fair chance to show its ability as a racer.

Horn Was Abroad.
As the general consensus of opinion was that the driver had made the lead would have a decided advantage, it was with a great deal of excitement that Horn swung around the first turn ahead of Prielipp. During this lap the Overland car gained considerably on the Buick and passed the grandstand at a terrific speed followed by the cheers of the crowd.

Slightly increasing his lead in the second lap, Horn approached the northwest turn of the track nearly an eighth of a lap ahead of his opponent. While making the turn at top speed the car skidded and the rear wheel struck a stump on the outer edge of the curve, shooting across the track with brakes set and skidding the unbalanced car into the track. Horn was thrown out, but after being rolled over several times he found that he was not hurt beside a shaking up and that the car had stopped a few feet away with no damage beside having one wheel torn completely off. Prielipp kept up his pace and several times narrowly missed hitting some of the people who were crowding over the track in an endeavor to see what had happened.

Quick Off Track.
On the fifth lap, having made good time the Buick car again approached the fated curve at high speed. Still in the same spot Prielipp's machine skidded and shooting across the track climbed the two foot embankment and plowed through the crowd which had collected on the inside of the course. Still sticking to the wheel Prielipp brought the machine around into the track with such a sharp turn that his mechanician, George Parker, was thrown off. After getting back onto the track he missed the boundary fence by a few inches, but quickly gained control of the car and continued on to the finish. Parker made a desperate effort to catch the machine after he had been thrown but could not recover himself quick enough.

Neither of the contestants were hurt by their falls but a spectator named Edward Austin of Johnston, was struck by the Buick as it shot through the crowd. This man was knocked several feet out onto the track where he was quickly picked up. Upon examination at the hospital by Drs. Mann and Dudley, it was found that no bones were broken or out of place and that the patient suffered more from the fright and shock than he did from any real injury.

Wide Interest Shown.
Considering the interest which was shown in the race all over the county, it is thought that the next one will be even a greater drawing card. Many out of town visitors were present and Milton, Milton Junction, Evansville, Madison, Beloit, and Edgerton were well represented. The number of spectators will probably be much increased at the next contest when it is pulled off within the next few days as planned.

While taking moving pictures of the race Ben Louthin hurried to the scene of the accident and was making a negative of the crowd surrounding the wrecked car when the second machine skidded and plunging into the crowd struck Mr. Austin. Despite the fact that the people within the vicinity of the accident were making every effort to get out of reach Mr. Louthin stuck to his machine and secured pictures of the entire accident.

First Score.

(Special to the Gazette)

Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—After going through a singularly successful season thus far, it came as a distinct disappointment to Coach Richards yesterday afternoon when the varsity was scouted on by the scrubs. The final score was 5 to 0. There was more action when Capt. Buser was seriously hurt. The pelvic bone was injured. The trainers hope he will be able to play Saturday against Northwestern, however. To make matters worse, Pierce, who had just recovered the use of his right leg, injured it again and had to quit. It is probable that Dranstad will play center next Saturday. Coach Richards clinched his teeth in the face of these misfortunes and said not a word.

The second team's touchdown was made by Schley, a Milwaukee boy, who starred throughout the scrimmage. Gilbert, one of the backs, added more glory to the scrubs by consistent work.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Frank Hickey will be at Now Haven again this fall, to help coach the Yale squad.

A Providence merchant has been a great help to the Brown squad in figuring out new plays.

Captain Joy of the Holy Cross eleven, has been out of the game on account of a lame shoulder.

Glenn Warner, the Carlisle coach, is using heavy men on the ends to carry the ball on his own side.

Walter Camp played on six Yale football eleven's and was captain of three of them, in 1878, 1879 and 1881.

The University of Chicago eleven are using the forward pass to the limit this season, and using it successfully, too.

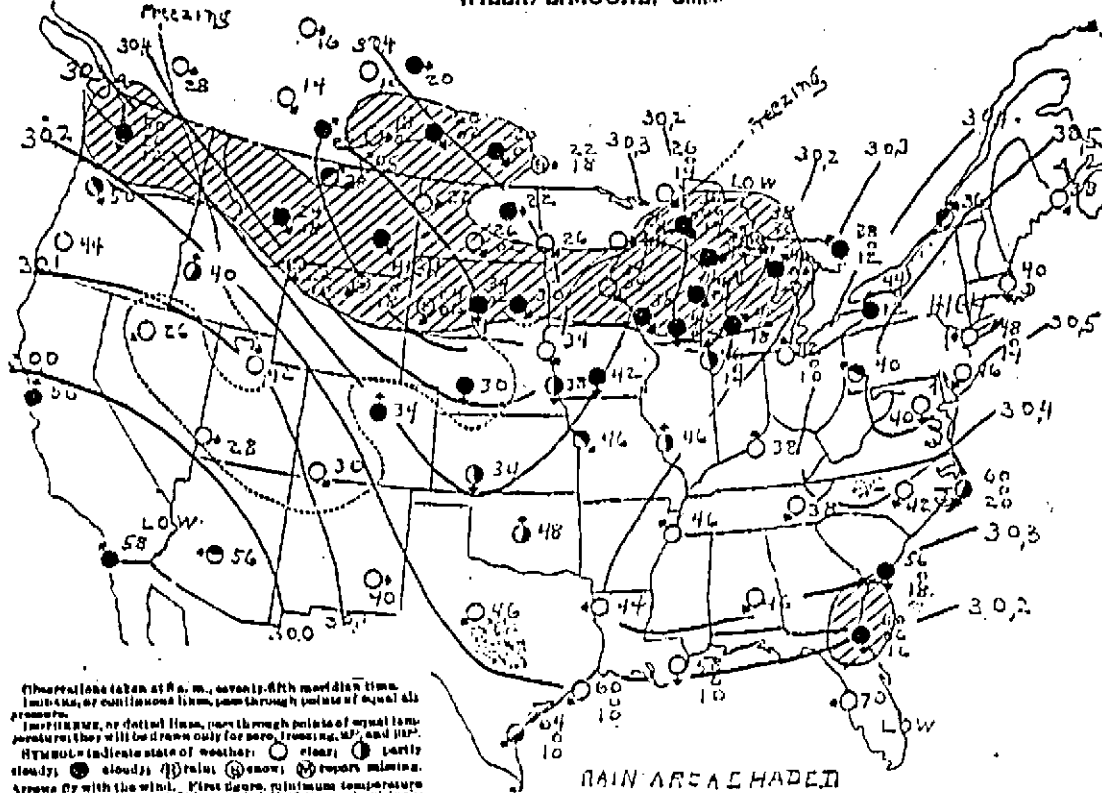

Joe Pendleton has been appointed referee for the Penn-Michigan game, Nov. 18, and for the Penn-Cornell game on Thanksgiving day.

Rogers, who was playing left tackle for Harvard, is out of the game because of an operation for appendicitis. Physically he was about the strongest man on the Crimson squad.

All the college teams are now playing games of four 15-minute periods. Under the old conditions of football, full-time games were never played until the middle of November.

Cooked in Quicklime.

Occasionally the English railway section hand cooks a rabbit without the aid of a fire. All he does is to cover it with a thick crust of clay and immerse it in quicklime. In about 20 minutes he takes it out, cracks the clay (which has baked hard) and inside is his meal done to a turn.

THE GREAT SYSTEM.

George H. Daniels, former general passenger agent New York Central lines, once made an address to some of his employees. It was a little speech, barely ten minutes in the giving, but it was long enough to state an important truth. Said the speaker: "Remember, my friends, you are part of a great system—a railroad system that is near perfection as human ingenuity can make it. But any system can be defeated by one single man who places himself out of harmony with it. The perfect success of a perfect system depends upon your loyalty and individual cooperation. We are told that the universe is a system, devised by an All-Wise Power. This seems to me to be so; and I believe that the entire business of life is to study the system and keep in harmony with it. No man can defeat the Divine system. . . . Your success, and mine, hinges on our giving perfect sympathy, undivided service, unalloyed devotion. By working for the good of all, we work for the good of ourselves—we only succeed as we work for the good of the whole. Keep in harmony with the system."

SOIL FERTILITY LEAGUE.

The National Soil Fertility League has been organized for the purpose of developing agriculture along scientific lines, and increasing production. Its board of directors include President Taft, James J. Hill, Wm. J. Bryan, and a dozen other men of national reputation. They ask for federal and state cooperation to aid agricultural colleges in demonstrating through object lessons the value of more intensified farming.

They find that in Europe, on soil that has been cropped for over a thousand years, the wheat average in Germany is 28 bushels; in England, 32; in Denmark, 40. A yield of 60 bushels or more is not uncommon. In the last twenty-five years Germany, with better culture and fertilization, has increased her output per acre on the six principal crops approximately 36 percent. Our soil in its virgin state was undoubtedly better than that of Europe.

"Mr. James J. Hill of St. Paul, probably the highest authority upon the question, says that at the present rate of increase in population, the ratio of production remaining the same, in twenty years a large part of the people will go to bed supperless."

"The 'Northwestern Miller,' one of the best flour and mill authorities, in a recent issue said:

"The problem of giving the masses bread is becoming the question of the hour. Beside it all others are insignificant."

"Commenting upon this statement, Mr. F. D. Coburn, Commissioner of Agriculture for Kansas, a man thoroughly informed, painstaking and conservative, said:

"These are not idle remarks, but the result of close observation and study by the wisest of the shrewd. They represent the most serious economic problem facing the American as well as the European public. A bread shortage is coming if we continue to grow in population at our present rate, unless something is done to increase the production."

"There are about three thousand counties in the United States from which come our food supply. To furnish each one of those counties with an expert demonstrator at a salary of $3,000 per annum will cost $3,000,000. This will be about ten cents per capita of our population, about what it costs to build and equip a modern battleship. The government reports show our annual crop value to average nearly $100 per person. This demonstration plan has been applied in many isolated cases, and has, as a rule, practically doubled the yield."

"If by the above plan of development we shall increase the crops one-half, it will mean an addition of $50 per capita to the national crop value at present prices. The cost indirectly to each individual will be about ten cents. As a business proposition, the money invested will give the largest legitimate return in human experience."

The Kansas City Star recently published the following statistics: "Ten years ago the United States export of wheat was enough to feed 35,000,000 persons. Last year it was barely enough for 11,000,000."

"In 1901 the export of meat animals was 799,000 head."

"In 1910 the export of meat animals was 188,000 head."

"In 1901 the export of beef and pork was 1,289,000,000 lbs."

"In 1910 the export of beef and pork was 500,000,000 lbs."

"Without change in farm methods and in the proportionate growth of farm population, this country will be consuming all its farm products within ten years. The farms of Europe are producing from two and one-half to three times per acre as much as American farms, notwithstanding they have been many centuries longer under cultivation, and originally were not so good as ours."

"To make this great movement successful we should have your co-operation. Mr. Reader, this statement is made in all sincerity. No issue before our nation today is comparable in scope and importance with this one. If its purposes shall be attained, blessings beyond human conception will result. It should be a pleasurable duty to any one to lend a helping hand."

"When the proper time comes and bills shall have been introduced into congress and in your state legislature to make the necessary appropriations to carry into effect this plan, we ask you to write to your member of congress and to your state representatives and urge them to support the bill, and also suggest that you get a few of your friends to do likewise. The united efforts of a few hundreds of vigorous, earnest, white-necked people focused upon an issue at the right time will bring victory to a worthy cause. Will you be one? Write us if you will, National Soil Fertility League, 3228 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill."

This is the right kind of work and merits most hearty endorsement. The farming lands of America are only producing a fraction of their capacity. What the nation needs is not more farms, but more farmers. If the soil of the old world, after one thousand years of cultivation, can produce double what our virgin soil produces, it is because the art of farming has been reduced to a science. What Europe has accomplished, America may do, if she will.

AN ESSAY ON EPICTETUS.

Epictetus wasn't a very rich, a breakfast food, a vanilla jelly or a grand old song. Epictetus was a native of Hierapolis in Phrygia. He died in 108 A. D. He taught a high ideal of life and nothing pleased him. He remained cheerful even under the most adverse circumstances. When somebody stepped on the narrative of his flowing toga, tripping at a back breadth and leaving him at the mercy of the Phrygian blizzard, he smiled and muttered that it might be a whole lot worse. There wasn't any sort of language that would make him angry and the fates could not cook any sort of angry scheme that upset his tranquility in the slightest degree. Epictetus was the calm with his fingers crossed twenty-four hours of the day, and when an untoward event appeared his face he laughed so loudly that he showed all his crown and bridge work and scared the event away.

He was the original cheer-up apostle, was Epictetus. He didn't care a tinker's dam whether school kept or not and he lived so long that the authorities thought for a while they would have to shoot him on the judgment day so that he would be able to join the great line of states who had gone before.

They never dared to let Epictetus go to a musical comedy, for he would laugh so loudly that he would break up the show, and anybody who can laugh at a musical comedy, it must be admitted is somewhat of a fool. They kept him in the patient medicine almshouse away from him for fear that he would laugh himself to death, and it was a very lucky thing for Epictetus that Joe Miller and Edna Parker Butler came along several centuries after his time.

They couldn't rattle Epictetus in the slightest degree. He could tinker up a laugh out of anything but it must always be remembered, fair reader that Epictetus lived away back in the first century. We have often wondered what would happen to Epictetus and his philosophy if he lived today and his wife would come to him and ask him to hook up about 376 of those cute little hooks and eyes concealed in the lace on the back of her dress. What would Epictetus do if he should find that his wife had loaned his razor to the Ladies' Aid Society for the purpose of selling him sandwiches to be sold at the church supper? What would he do if his next-door neighbor borrowed his lawn-mower the first of May and returned it the first of October? What would he do if he lived next door to a talking machine fiend, or if the neighbor next door kept the chickens that dug up his flower beds, or if some insane Galat should get the wrong number and call him out of bed by telephone at 2 o'clock in the morning, causing him to fall down the stairs and break a $196 cheval glass? What if he should have a fire, blow out nine miles from any human habitation and no tools with him?

Would Epictetus remain a true Stoic or would he let out several yards of pyrotechnic language which would burn up all the oxygen in the air and suffocate the innocent bystanders? That is a question of course, but if there are any Stoics hanging around in this day and age, they are not working at it. Epictetus, we believe, was never obliged to undergo a real test.

THE WAY OF THE GAMBLER.

The story of the career of James Pettit, the Chicago grain broker who committed suicide recently, is the story of an overweening ambition.

There was nothing spectacular in Pettit's life, no effective material for dramatic episodes. It is the story of the hidden history of a man, such a tale of hidden motives would appeal to the genius of an Ibsen.

Out of the heart proceed the issues of life.

Eighteen years ago James Pettit, twenty-four, just out of college, began life as a clerk in a grain office. He determined in his heart to be a rich man. Under a calm exterior was a spirit fired with fierce desire.

Six years later he had been promoted and was chief assistant in the big grain company. His thirst for money was intensified by his love for a beautiful girl.

Two years later, having been made manager of the concern, he married. Satisfied?

He should have been. He owned a beautiful home, was respected, trusted and was on the way to riches. But his restless ambition was unquenched. Like the man who drinks salt water, the more he drank the more he wanted.

He would be a multimillionaire. Pettit speculated heavily on his own account and lost. He determined to corner the oats market. The market went against him. He sank all his own money and borrowed heavily from the banks.

At this point his integrity broke down.

He wanted to get rich quick by a coup that would acclaim him the most victorious broker of his time. The grain company had assets of millions. The paper of the firm was good anywhere in the northwest.

Pettit borrowed money, signing the notes of the company as president, and dumped hundreds of thousands of dollars into the market to uphold his deal.

An audit of the books was ordered by the directors.

Pettit knew that audit spelled ruin for him. The lines of anger showed on his face, and he grew haggard, but otherwise he gave no sign.

A day or two before the bookkeepers began to audit the books, Pettit's lifeless body was found near the shore of the lake, and it was soon discovered that he had stolen millions.

GOVERNOR WILSON

THROUGH HERE ON WAY TO MADISON

Popular Governor of New Jersey Passes Through Janesville at Noon Today.

The popular governor of New Jersey, Woodrow Wilson, and a party of seven associates, passed through Janesville at noon today enroute for Madison where the governor will deliver a lecture tonight at the Social Center Conference. He is making an extended trip, having left North Philadelphia at 6:37 p. m., yesterday, arriving in Chicago this morning. He came over the Pennsylvania line to Chicago and was transferred with his party to train No. 501, on the Northwestern, arriving here at 20:01. The Pennsylvania train was twenty-five minutes late into Chicago, thus making the Northwestern train late, they waiting for him to arrive.

He arrived in Madison at 1:15 this afternoon and was given a reception by the city. At 2:30 p. m. he will deliver his address and tomorrow will be taken through the Capital City in an automobile, accompanied by the prominent men of that city. At 11:00 a. m. he will be the guest of the democrats of that city at a large reception where he will deliver a political address. From the reception he will be taken to the Northwestern station and will leave Madison at 3:35 p. m.

He will again pass through here at 7:00 p. m. on his return trip to Chicago, where he arrives at 9:00 p. m., leaving there at 11:13 p. m. for St. Louis.

He will arrive at St. Louis at 7:58 a. m. and will take the "Katy" Limited for Dallas, where he will arrive at 10:15 a. m. on Monday, October 23. At Dallas he will speak at the Bible Centennial, First Baptist church, in the morning, and in the afternoon will deliver a speech at the Texas State fair which will be in progress at that time.

He will leave Dallas, Sunday, and will return to Philadelphia via Little Rock, Ark., and St. Louis, arriving at North Philadelphia at 11:22 a. m., Tuesday, October 31.

He displayed none of the usual pomp and splendor that is usually seen when a prominent political man travels, having no special car and making the entire trip, with his party of seven associates, just the same as men of his type are wont to do.

He was at dinner when the train arrived here and it was impossible to get an interview. Some of the Janesville people seemed to know of his passing through here as no one was in evidence to welcome him in behalf of the city. He stated that he was well pleased with the political prospects for the coming presidential campaign and spoke very highly of many of the political men of the Badger State.

FIFTY DOLLAR KAUL

MADE BY BURGLARS AT HUMPHREY HOME

J. B. Humphrey Residence on Court Street Burglarized Last Night—Douglas Hardware Store Entered.

Some fifty dollars worth of jewelry and valuables were taken from the home of J. B. Humphrey on Court street last night by burglars, who made their entrance through a dining room window while the family was away from home.

An immediate search was made and it was found that nearly all of the small jewelry in the house had disappeared, besides some valuable pictures which were cut from a hat. In all the losses amount to somewhere about fifty dollars.

Mr. Humphrey was out of the city and the rest of the family after spending the evening at the home of one of the neighbors upon returning home about half past nine were unable to open the front door. Entrance was made through a rear window by a friend and the window of the dining room on the first floor was found to be opened. The fact that other things of considerable value were not touched would go to show that the thieves were frightened away by the unexpected return of the owners.

Every curtain on the second floor was found carefully drawn and other things gave evidence that the burglars had been in the house for some time before they made their hasty departure.

Douglas Store Entered. Upon arrival at the store this morning employees of the Frank Douglas Hardware store, 15-17 south River street, discovered that a small amount of change was missing from the till, and that a watch which belonged to David Heenan had been taken from a small room the desk where it had been left last night.

Investigation showed that the thief or thieves had gained entrance to the store through a window opening on the alley at the rear of the store. A small triangle of glass had been broken from the upper corner of the window, which allowed room to reach through and unfetter the window lock. An exit was evidently effected through the same window.

There was very little cash in the till, all but a few pennies and nickels having been transferred to the safe last night according to the usual custom. As far as could be found today none of the merchandise had been touched and the marauders had evidently been intent on securing loot in the shape of cash. There was no clue as to their identity, and Mr. Douglas had no idea regarding the perpetrators of the affair.

Y. M. C. A. GLEE CLUB

WILL BE ORGANIZED

Twelve Members of Association Will Be Organized Into Club—Bible Class Will Begin Work.

Saturday evening twelve members of the Y. M. C. A. will be organized into a glee club. No definite plans can be made until it is known whether enough male voices can be secured to make the project practical. But the general idea for which the club is to be formed is to have a capable choir which will be available for extra church services, meetings of different sorts and any similar occasion where they would be especially useful.

Such a club would be a great benefit to the Sunday afternoon meetings at the Y. M. C. A. as well as to the other meetings which are held by a special choir. When it is certain that a sufficient number of voices are to be counted on a leader will be secured and work will begin with a will. Mr. Kline is looking for men who can sing and would be willing, and all who are interested in this sort of an organization are invited to come to the building Saturday night.

Bible Classes. Bible classes similar to those of last year will be started within the next two weeks with the juniors and with the others a little later. There will be three groups of high school students, one of the seniors and one for the business men. An effort will be made to work in more classes than there were last year. The International Bible lessons will be studied and the classes decide for themselves when the meeting is to occur.

HALF OF PROCEEDS FOR LOCAL FIGHT

State Organization for Prevention of Tuberculosis Announces New Plan For Sale of Stamps.

(SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE) Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 25.—Fifty per cent of the proceeds of this year's Christmas seal sale in each city or town that has a local anti-tuberculosis association will go to that organization for its own local fight. This was the effect of a resolution adopted by the state organization at the annual meeting in Milwaukee with a view to stimulating the sale of seals as well as encouraging a formation of local units. The conditions of the offer require that each association must submit for the state organization's approval, a statement of what it proposes to do with its percentage of the seal sale. Plans for providing that the money be used to institute a visiting nurse fund, to furnish an open-air school, public drinking fountain, or other efficient safeguard against tuberculosis will, in all cases, be approved.

In order to insure equal fairness to all, it is provided that no association will receive a percentage of its sales unless organized before December 1.

The details of its organization, with the names of its officers must be reported to the state organization before that date. All applications for local campaign managers by local organizations of this kind will be considered by the executive committee composed of Prof. M. P. Ravenel, Madison; Prof. L. E. Rohrer, Madison; Dr. J. W. Cook, Wales; Dr. C. A. Baer, Milwaukee; and Mr. John Kommer, Milwaukee.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY

AT ASSEMBLY HALL

Daughters of Isabelle Hostesses at Pleasant Event Last Evening—Eighty-five Couples Present.

Last evening at Assembly hall about eighty-five couples enjoyed the dance given by the Daughters of Isabelle. The decorations consisted of a tasteful arrangement of purple and gold streamers and garlands of all descriptions. Interspersed with many-blossomed autumn leaves. Palma and a heavy bank of foliage adorned the musicians' stand making a very pretty sight. The hostesses each wore a purple and gold arm band with the letters "D. I." upon it, and a row of jack-o-lanterns in the balcony spelled the word "Isabelle." Punch was served during the evening from tables in the corners of the room by a number of young ladies. Hatch's seven piece orchestra furnished music for the dancers and festivities did not end until the one o'clock hour.

TOPICS FOR DEBATES

READ TO STUDENTS

Prof. H. C. Duell Reads Questions Submitted by Beloit Management, to High School Students.

Questions for the interscholastic debate, between the schools of Illinois and Wisconsin which is held annually under the auspices of the public speaking department of Beloit college, were read by Prof. H. C. Duell at the opening of high school this morning. Each school entered in the debating contest a requested to make its choice of the questions and send the same to the Beloit management at the earliest possible time.

The following are the three questions which were submitted to the schools for choice. The first involves the question of "Woman Suffrage," the second "Conservation," and the third, "Foreign Immigration." All three are good questions and are of great importance at the present time.

At present there are eight schools which are members of this interstate debating league. Four of these are Wisconsin high schools and four are Illinois high schools. The Wisconsin four are Racine, Kenosha, Beloit and Janesville. Elgin, Rockford, Freeport and Aurora are the four Illinois schools.

Janesville will be matched with her rival, Beloit, and will meet her at Beloit this year because the debate was held here last year. The debate will take place on the evening of December 22, which will be the Friday before Christmas. On that same evening the other teams will also debate and the two winners in each state will then debate each other. And finally the team from Wisconsin will meet the champion team of the Illinois division and the winner of the league will then be found.

MANY FREAK LETTERS

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT IS FLOODED WITH THEM.

Some Correspondents Regard It as Bureau for Locating Missing Relatives—One Wants "Instantment to Find Hidden Treasures."

In addition to the regular and legitimate business of the post office department there has been developed within the past few years a flood of extraordinary and extraneous correspondence, addressed to the postmaster general in Washington, which bids fair in the near future to necessitate the establishment of a regular division of the department whose sole business it shall be to handle "freak correspondence."

A vast majority of the letters seek to make use of the department as a lost and found bureau for missing relatives, as in the following, received a few days ago:

"Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.:

"Respected Sirs: I am writing you in regard to my adopted father, Daniel D. Olthoff. The last I heard from him was about ten years ago, when he was at Atlantic City, N. J., and I would be very thankful if you could give me some information regarding him. I would like to learn whether he is dead or alive, and if the former, would like to know if he left a will.

"Trusting to receive a favorable reply soon, I am, truly yours,

"HARRY R. GIBBS,"

"Lithton, Colo."

The department officials are at a loss to know just what the Lithton correspondent will consider a favorable reply. Whether or not the demand of the adopted relative will be considered by him as "favorable" he leaves to the imagination or the leniency of the departmental officials. He has been advised that the government is not in a position to make searches for missing relatives.

At the same time similar requests for information in the past have, through the publicity, won for seekers long lost kinsfolk. Last fall a woman in Michigan, widow of a farmer, found her son, who had been missing for more than twenty years, through the medium of the post office department. She was in destitute circumstances and her son proved to be a prosperous business man of Detroit.

Consent and conversion is productive of many letters. Some of the correspondents incline to make restitution of sums of money so small that they hardly pay for the incidental bookkeeping. Here is an instance:

"Dear Mr. Hitchcock: Please find enclosed one two-cent stamp and one one-cent stamp for which I owe you. When I was a child I used these stamps that came on a letter because they were not cancelled, and I did not know that it was wrong until I read in God's word."

A letter from New York state included eight cents as restitution for a like peculation.

The following was recently received by the postmaster general from J. O. Stewart of Alcorn, Tex.:

"Dear Sir: I will write you a few lines asking you if you have an instrument that would go to hidden treasures—gold and silver. If you handle anything like that let me know by return mail. I know lots of hidden treasures and can locate them without a instrument, and what kind of a trial good you let me have one on?"

AMERICAN BRIDE OF A TURK

Marriage of St. Paul Society Girl and Turkish Secretary of Interest in Washington.

Dr. Blaque Bey is an American by birth and was born at Washington while his father was Turkish minister. He speaks English fluently and is a man of refinement and culture. He met Miss Kalman two years ago in Berlin and out of this chance meeting developed the romance which recently culminated in marriage.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy Was Found.

Miss Minerva Remington, Upper Merion, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. I lived on bread and beef tea because my stomach would not retain anything else. I took many remedies, but obtained no relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I began to gain at once. Am now cured."

Pure, rich blood makes good, strong nerves, and this is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and enriches the blood, cures so many nervous diseases. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

Wake Up With a "Dark Brown Taste?"

Get Rid of It! Run for OLIVE TABLETS

There isn't the slightest need to wake up any morning with a "brown mouth." No need to describe it! Dr. Edwards has made "brown mouth" a thing of the past in thousands of homes with his Little Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Anyone who takes Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets the moment he suspects his liver and bowels never has a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a pimply face, constipation or any other form of bowel or liver disorder.

Take one just the moment you suspect you are constipated or that your liver is out of order.

Thousands take one at bedtime every night just to keep the bowels regular, the liver in order, the mouth clean and the breath pure and sweet. Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards spent 17 years in practice and in laboratory experiments before he perfected Olive Tablets.

Why don't you try them instead of the severe kind of laxatives that grip and only effect temporary relief?

"Every Little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

At all drug stores in neat pocket packages. At 10c and 25c.

STRONG PRODUCTION BY EXCELLENT CAST

"The Gambler," By Charles Klein, Treating of Present Day Financial and Political Problems, at Myers Theater.

Treating of present day problems in the political and financial world as related to family and home ties, Charles Klein's great play, "The Gambler," was given by a very able company at Myers Theater last evening.

should sue for divorce and that she should promise to wait for her lover, Wilbur Emerson, until he had served his prison term.

The production was intense in its dramatic climax and proved to be one of the strongest plays which has thus far appeared here this season.

The company was exceptionally well balanced and the stage setting was exceptionally beautiful.

Lyman Twins coming in The Biggest Success of Their Career

It over two young comedians hit the end of success. The Lyman Twin Brothers have sounded it true in the production of their new musical play
The Speculators which is the most novel piece of theatrical entertainment seen on the stage in many a day. At The Myers Theater Thursday Oct. 25.

The cry by all of the big theatrical producers was: "We want a piece with a story, the public are sick of sawney and a lot of cliche with one or two slap stick comedians to fill in the chinks between, and called musical comedy." And in this they were right for a few years ago any musical show with forty people was good as long as it had a big chorus, but today it is different. The public want the piece, the musical show with a story, strong situations, pretty climaxes and a company of real comedians with twelve or fourteen good chorus girls, not twenty bad ones.

It is on these principles this new novel twin comedy has been produced with a success so spontane-aneous, so overwhelming, that after the opening performance in Chicago, August 6th, a most flattering offer was made to put the entire production in one of the down town houses and this will in all probability be done within the next thirty days providing the right house can be secured.

Mr. Wood's selection on the violin exhibited excellent technique and sympathetic interpretation. "The Sandman," sung by Mr. Brownson with chorus was one of the most popular of the evening. His voice was a fine baritone. Later in the program he gave a very clever rendition of a reading from "The Merchant of Venice."
The surprises of the program were the concertina selections of Mr. George. Few suspected the possibility of that instrument, well made, and played by skillful hands. "Hearts and Flowers" and imitations of bag-pipe and pipe organ were given.

In "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" Mr. Turner showed the quality of his voice even more strikingly than before.

The closing selection of the program was the chorus "Comrades in Arms," the accompaniment being played by Messrs. Emerson and Wood.

MOST SEVERE COLD
IS EASILY BROKEN

In Just a Few Hours All Misery From
A Bad Cold or the Grippe Will Be Overcome.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, lungs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, chil-lens, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made any-

Yesterday's Slump.

Diet of the Devilfish.

A lady's hat was discovered in the stomach of a large "monk" or "devil"
fish which was opened on Scarborough fish pier yesterday. The hat was practically whole. Inside the large mouth of the fish was a sole. No doubt the hat had been blown from the head of some young lady on a ship.—London
Daily News.

Truism Repeated.

"No man is truly great," says a philosopher, "unless he is able to convince his neighbors that he is." That may be true. Anyway, a man's neighbors are the last to discover that he is great.

The Alarm Clock.

The devil was asleep when man was made, but he awoke before woman was completed.—Life.

Was Handicapped There.
"Last thing, after they had got him into court for takin' my mule an'
ever' thing else he could lay his hands on," said the Hillville citizen, "they told him to 'take the stand,' but he couldn't well get away with that, as the judge an' jury had their eyes on him."—Atlanta Constitution.

Fond of Walking Sticks.

Of all people perhaps none is more fond of canes or more skilled in their use than our fellow citizens of Porto Rico. The walking stick in that island would seem to mark social distinctions among men as fans do among women.

Bees and Cranberries.
Cranberry producers at Cape Cod are calling for colonies of bees in order to make their plants more productive, practical tests having established that the activity of the bees in carrying pollen from plant to plant is a means of materially increasing the yield of this Cape Cod staple.

Wealth Not Deeply Hidden.

Men sometimes dream of enormous wealth, stored deep in the earth, below the reach of miners, but experts aver that there is little or no ground to believe that valuable metallic deposits lie very deep in the earth's crust.

Self-Satisfied Parrots.
Parrots are very sensitive to praise, and also have an excellent opinion of themselves; and it is by playing on these two feelings that they can be taught such wonderful tricks. The one thing they cannot bear is to remain unnoticed; and you can throw a parrot into a passion of jealousy by pretending not to hear it, and by talking to another bird.

Reverses Don't Faze Him.

There are many poets who think have noticed that this doesn't keep them from writing more poetry.—

"Marriage" by H.G. Wells

The same Wells who used to write that Jules Verne kind of stories—who dropped them for something better—who then wrote "Tono-Bungay" and "Mr. Polly"—who is today the greatest novelist writing in English, has written a long story for THE AMERICAN.

It is called "Marriage," because it begins where most novels leave off.

It will interest you, because it deals with the most common problem of married life, too much spending on too little cash.

It is in solving the problem that Wells reveals the imagination that produced "The War of the Worlds," but it is in drawing the character of Marjorie that he shows his greatness as a writer.

DIXIE CHORUS WINS ROUNDS OF APPLAUSE

Program Given at Congregational Church Last Evening by Negro Troupe Declared Best of Kind.

Enthusiastic appreciation, which expressed itself in rounds of hearty applause and repeated calls for encores, greeted the program of the Dixie Chorus at the Congregational church last evening. It was generally conceded by those present that it was the best ever given in Janesville by a negro troupe. As stated in the announcements, their entertainment in of an entirely different nature than the public has been led to expect of a negro concert company, and it was this pleasant surprise as well as the musical talent and excellent performance of its members, that accounted for the appreciation of their audience.

The program was opened with a series of tableaux depicting the life of the negro in slavery, showing him in the native costume and in dress.
Following came two sketches showing negro life in slavery. These were cleverly and sympathetically presented, showing the humor and good nature of the black man, as well as his affection and melancholy. The pathos of the sketch was woven around the classic negro melody, "Old Black Joe," sung with a mellowness and warmth of tone seldom excelled.
The solo part was sung by Mr. Tenney, a giant in size with a rugged bass voice, wonderful in its range and powerful in volume. The representation of a negro church service was touching as well as ludicrous.

The address of Henry Coleman
on the race problem was inspiring, scholarly in presentation, and convincing. He described the work of such men as Tillman, Thomas Dixon, and Vardaman, and pleaded for sympathy and a fair show for his fellowmen.

The last part of the program consisted of musical selections and readings, each member of the troupe contributing a number, and responding to hearty encores. An original banjo solo recalled the possibilities of that much neglected instrument and Toid's "Good-bye" revealed a tenor voice of fine quality and careful train-

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

How Civilized Are You?

IT is rather interesting to read the following from the pen of Geo. William Curtis, for when he wrote it, the woman question certainly had not the attention focused on it that it has today. Yet you, who, this thinker and writer saw the value to civilization of giving woman her true place, and so he wrote, "The test of civilization is the estimate of woman. Among savages, she is a slave. In the Dark Ages of Christendom, she is a toy and a sentimental goddess. With increasing moral light and larger liberty and more universal justice, she begins to develop as an equal human being."

Just for the sake of finding some things out about ourselves individually, of which we may be unconscious, let us apply this test to ourselves. What is our estimate of woman; and, measured by this test, just how civilized are we?

Most of us have passed the savage state, though here and there will be found a man whose wife or mother or sister is his slave. She has no money of her own. She must in all things do exactly as he bids, and in reality, her life is slavish. But these are the exceptions. Happily, the slave period is past.

But haven't most of us stopped at the toy and sentimental goddess stage? To many men, women are either a toy or a goddess. They are something furnished for masculine amusement when the serious work of the day is done, or else, they are wonderful creatures set on a pedestal and worshipped. This is, up to the present, the generally accepted attitude toward women. And it indicates, according to George William Curtis, that we are still in the Dark Ages.

And is he not right? For while half the human family is so regarded, does it not show that we are not doing very much thinking, and that we are indeed sitting in darkness as to what will make for progress. For man has a heavy burden when he alone must lift the human race. It takes man and woman working together equally, with an equal understanding of the work in hand, to perform this stupendous task. When he must lift woman as well, progress must inevitably be slow.

Here and there are found the few who have passed beyond the Dark Ages stage; who have that moral light, that sense of universal justice which accords woman her place as an equal human being. And when this spirit is universal, when woman comes to her rightful and helpful place in the scheme of things, then indeed will civilization flower in its perfection.

But just for the fun of the thing, if for no other reason, apply this test to yourself, and decide privately, if you do not wish to proclaim the answer publicly, just how civilized you are.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

SOMETIMES I wonder how anyone ever dares to get married. And that sometimes is after reading in the magazines and newspapers some of the articles about the impossibility of being happy though married.

"Why I am not married," "Why my wife left me," "Why I wouldn't marry my husband if I had my life to live over again," "Why I beat my husband with the frying pan every morning," "How to keep up appearances even if you hate your husband"—I quote from memory, so these may not be entirely exact, but I assure you they are very similar to the titles of the magazine articles with which we are constantly bombarded.

And every time a newspaper writer runs out of other material she takes a long breath and proceeds to warn her readers of some thing in the matrimonial river that even the most skillful pilot has a bare chance of avoiding. I know, you see, for I do it myself. And the trouble with most of these warnings and prophecies is that they are true. But one of the greatest lessons that life gradually teaches us is that no truth is the whole truth, and that one thing may be true and that another almost opposite may also be true.

And that applies to the question of matrimony as well as to any other.

Of course there is no doubt at all that marriage is not the rosy mountain top existence which courtship paints it.

But what of that? Was ever any pleasure, any undertaking, the spotlessly perfect thing anticipated painted by the poets and the romancers?

To be sure, one must bring infinite tolerance and forbearance to the marriage relation in order to make it a happy one.

But what of that? Is there any family relation—brother and sister, father and son, mother and daughter—but requires tolerance and forbearance to make it happy? And yet one would not wish on account of that to be a recluse or a hermit.

Do you know I haven't a doubt that the woman who tells us in the magazine article why she wouldn't marry her husband if she had her life to live over again would probably go back to him if she had a third life after the second.

Now, perhaps you think I'm overestimating the effect of all this magazine and newspaper talk.

Perhaps I am. And yet I have heard more than one girl say, "Why, I positively am afraid to get married. You read so much about divorce and married people being unhappy."

They forget, you see, that the reason one reads so much more about unhappily married people than the other kind, is that everyday happiness makes no news, and that newspaper readers would be dissatisfied if instead of a spicy piece about Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So, who are trying to see who can divorce the other first, they should find a list of people who are happy though married, in their morning paper.

Cheer up, young folks. Much of life that seems complex when you talk too much about it grows simpler when you come to living it.

Cultivate forbearance and tolerance, get the habit of letting each day take care of its own troubles and a disposition not to expect too much, and I have not a doubt but that some day you and the other half of you may stand on the crest of the hill singing that sweet old folks' love song—

"John Anderson, my Jo, John,
We clamb the hill together,
And monie a cantie day, John,
We've had wif and another.
Now we maun totter down, John,
But hand in hand we'll go,
And sleep together at the foot,
John Anderson, my Jo!"

WHAT IS MEANT BY PRESENT CONTEST

Feature Editor Writes More in Detail How Contestants Should Arrange Their Articles.

I find there is some misunderstanding by a few readers of this page just what is meant by the present contest. In order to straighten this matter out and give everyone a good fair start I will make matters more plain, if possible.

The idea is to secure plans for preparing for the table supply for winter. By this is meant—Does the average housewife find it more economical to lay in a large stock of supplies, either home-made or purchased from the grocer, or do they depend upon the grocers for their daily needs?

In writing on this subject it will not be necessary to explain how you arrange your table; what you give your family to eat, but tell how you store away your supplies so they will keep, if you do so.

Write on one side of the paper on ly. Submit your article to five hundred words and have it in the hands of the Feature Editor by November 15th at the latest—the earlier the better.

If there are any questions you wish to ask write to the Feature Editor and your questions will be answered at once.

The following is the list of prizes: First Prize.—Set of Dishes.

Second Prize.—Half Dozen Silver Tea Spoons.

Third Prize.—Danie Courtesy Cook Book.

Fourth Prize.—Family Scales.

Fifth Prize.—Vacuum Bottle.

For Children's Amusement.

Children, as a rule, like much more of their toys than they do their playthings which they make themselves out of any oddsments which may be at hand at the moment. If a child possesses sufficient imagination, a lump of modeling clay, a piece of punched cardboard, and a wool-threaded needle will take a number of new forms which will satisfactorily occupy lengthy afternoons.

The Kitchen Cabinet

SOME people are always grumbling because roses have thorns, roses.

We need never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three kinds—all they have had, all they have now, and all they expect to have.

Well, he was a brave man who first did it an oyster.

THE OYSTER SEASON.

Spindled Oysters.—Drain a quart of oysters from their liquor and handle each one, to be sure there are no bits of shell to cause discomfort; then dry between the folds of a towel. Cut pieces of bacon half the size of the oysters and arrange the oysters and bacon in alternate layers on wooden skewers, being careful to pierce the hard muscle of the oyster. Place in a hot pan and bake until the bacon is done. Serve a skewer on a slice of toast to each person. The oyster liquor may be heated and poured over the toast just before serving.

Supreme Oysters.—Melt two tablespoonsful of butter and fry until a yellow color, two tablespoonsful of minced onion; add four tablespoonsful of flour and when well blended a half cup each of cream, chicken stock and oyster liquor. Season with salt, cayenne and nutmeg. Cook five minutes, then add half a cup of finely cut chicken, the yolks of three eggs well beaten; when thick, cool. Parboil a pint of oysters dry and cover each with the chicken mixture, dip in egg and crumbs and fry in hot fat. Serve on a hot dish, garnish with lemon and parsley.

Oyster Soup Amsterdam Style.—Clean, pick over and chop one quart of oysters, parboil, drain and add to the liquor enough water to make a quart. Brown three tablespoonsful of butter and add three and a half tablespoonsful of flour. Pour on gradually, stirring constantly the oyster liquor. Let simmer a half hour. Season with salt, paprika, celery salt, and just before serving add a cup of cream.

Oysters are valuable in the diet, as they add to the flavors and variety and are easily digested. As to nutrition, there is not much in a pint of oysters.

Moscow's Municipal Pawnshops. In Moscow, Russia, the pawnshop is a municipal affair. Last year over half a million articles were pawned, having a valuation of over $3,000,000. It is noticed that in March and April the poor element of Moscow keeps the pawnshop busy, and during that period customarily parts with its warm overclothing.

Thought for Today

NRS. ROBERT M. LAFFLETTE.

CORRECTING HABIT.

THE idea that we cannot change habit once formed is, I believe, a survival of the time when the whole tendency of life was to remain in grooves. But modern living is one continuous illustration of the power to substitute new habits for old. We no longer live in the same place, sleep in the same bed, sit in the same chair for a lifetime. People move from the country to the town, from town to country. The picturesque grandmother does not knit by the fireside, but is a leader among women. The grandfather does not retire from business, but is a captain of industry. The hand is the agent of the mind. Its habits are more essentially automatic than any other voluntary physical act. But when permanently deprived of the use of the right hand, men learn to shave, women to sew and every one can learn to write with the left hand.

Mental and moral habits are subject to this same law. Habit is a tremendous economizer of time and will power. The body, the mind, the soul, are precious and should have the best start in the straight and narrow path, that can be given them. The habitual drunkard, the habitual smoker should be made warning examples of the dangers of wrongful habituation. The importance of forming correct habits of study, dress, social usage and so on, cannot be too highly valued.

And yet one of the first objects of mental, moral and physical discipline, should be to keep from getting into unchangeable habits or of begetting them unchangeable. If a man thinks he cannot quit tobacco, or a woman thinks her life dependent on a cup of tea, there is much less likelihood of reform than if they know they can forego these indulgences if they will.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

THREE PRESIDENTS WHO PLAYED HOOKEY.

Three presidents failed to attend the inaugural ceremonies of their successors. Both the Adamses have this distinction, and likewise Andrew Jackson. John Adams was greatly disappointed at his failure to secure a second term, and felt very bitter toward his successful rival, Thomas Jefferson. On the last day of his administration he worked till midnight filling offices and signing commissions, and then slipped out of Washington in the early morning hours of the day that was to see Jefferson installed in his place. His grandson, John Quincy Adams, had a better excuse for not attending the inauguration of his successor, Andrew Jackson. Party spirit ran high in those days, and there was no love between the two. It is said, however, that Jackson came to Washington with the full intention of calling on Adams and of being friendly, but was dissuaded from doing so by his party associates. Of course this made it out of the question for Adams to attend the inaugural. Andrew Johnson had quarreled with the man who was to succeed him, General Grant, as he had with almost every one else, and neither had any use for the other. Johnson probably would have been willing to attend Grant's inaugural, but Grant peremptorily refused to ride in the same carriage with him.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

Food Specialist

LEARNED FROM ANIMALS.

As most of our knowledge of physiology has been acquired by observations upon animals, we can learn much from the eating habits of anthropoid apes especially. Hagenbeck, the animal importer, who is especially familiar with the eating habits of monkeys, says "they are not very dainty in their appetites, but like solid, homely food and devour it with great relish." I have observed the eating habits of all monkeys except the gorilla, and I should substitute "eat" for "devour," which suggests bolting. The monkey masticates thoroughly, when he is not in danger of interruption or of having his food stolen. Daintiness in feeding is responsible for much sickness; the more "homely" the food is, the other things being equal, the better; the ideal scientific limit being the monodiet. I have also pointed out in many hints, the advisability of giving children especially "solid" food, in preference to "mushy." I have also frequently shown the importance of "relaxing" food. I have shown consumption and cancer, particularly, to be forms of mal-nutrition, and Rayer, an eminent authority on animal pathology, says that "the monkey that sticks to his original bill of fare rarely suffers from it" (cancer), while Leblanc, a high veterinary authority, says that the dog is most subject to cancer, and we know that his diet approaches man's more nearly than that of any other domesticated animal except the pig, the most diseased of all animals, and the nearest to man in his alimentary physiology, except the monkey.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

No Reasonable Excuse for Serving Cold or Stale Foods (By Alice E. Whitaker.)

The man in front of me was trying to describe the faults of his boarding mistress. "Well," he said, "she is one of the kind that worries all the time lest she don't have something to slice up cold." It mattered not that the roar and jar of the car prevented hearing more, for I fully realized from this one remark the sort of table to which this homeless man was sitting down daily. Cold bread, sliced cold meat, cold pie, cold potatoes sliced and warmed in a little fat, fruit sauces cooked the day before, and so on through the list that some misguided housekeeper provides.

It is often to enjoy a sense of being furnished that food is cooked in large amounts ahead of the time that it is to be eaten; again it is done to secure time for other work or for pleasure seeking. But this is always done with harm to those who eat the stale food. It is true that the early housewives cooked stacks of food in their brick ovens with the idea that it would carry them through the next seven days.

They and some excuse, for it was hours of work to heat the brick oven and, once heated it was capable of baking for hours afterward.

With the memory of many women the Saturday's baking was a fixed task but now when it is possible to have many homes to heat an oven by lighting a match and there are no housekeeping quarters but can in some way heat a saucepan in a few minutes, it is decidedly a culinary sin to feed a family half the time on cold food.

Warm food, well seasoned, invites a flow of gastric juice and need cost no more than cold victuals. There are two reasons why cold food should be avoided. It is not easily assimilated because it must be raised to the temperature of the body before digestion will begin. Again, when food costs as much as it does now, no family can afford to throw it away and when a large supply is cooked than is often found there is apt to be much waste. Even if it is not wasted then it is worked over in various ways that take both time and fuel which have a money value. Very few twice-cooked foods are as healthful as when first prepared—hashes, bread puddings and warmed over meats and vegetable should be seldom served.

An example of what the present generation expects was the old-fashioned Sunday night tea or the average supper that was served when dinner was eaten at mid day. On gala occasions there might be hot biscuits, fried chicken and other good things but the usual tea had nothing warm but the beverage, and in those days there were many who did not believe in drinking tea and coffee so they drank cold water. Cold sliced bread, cold stewed fruit, sauce, pie and cake was the average menu, and in addition no one believed in eating anything after supper until the next morning. Now when dinner is not eaten at night there is always something hot and savory for supper. It is also better understood that many nervous people, partial invalids and students are benighted at bed time by a cup of hot cocoa and a cracker, for instance.

Not many years ago children who lived too far from school to go home at noon carried a dinner pail or basket filled with cold edibles to be eaten and washed down by a drink from

Drive Away Germs with Gold Dust

The modern surgeon carefully cleanses hands and instruments before and after every operation; he realizes the danger both to himself and his patient of any clinging germs.

Germs thrive and multiply wherever they can find a lodging place in grease and dirt, and where things are scrupulously clean they find it hard to live.

The easiest and surest way to keep things clean lies in the use of Gold Dust washing powder. Gold Dust goes deep after dirt and roots out every germ and hidden impurity. It is the sanitary cleanser.

the common supply in the water bucket. In country school houses the food was often frozen in winter and was not conducive to good digestion and clear brain work. In large cities at present school children can have hot food and drink at noon in the school building where it is sold at cost.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erle, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors, and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me, and I hope all suffering women will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. Erdlich, J. E. D. No. 7, Erle, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no poisons or harmful drugs, and is a day holder, the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaint, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

VERIFY IT.

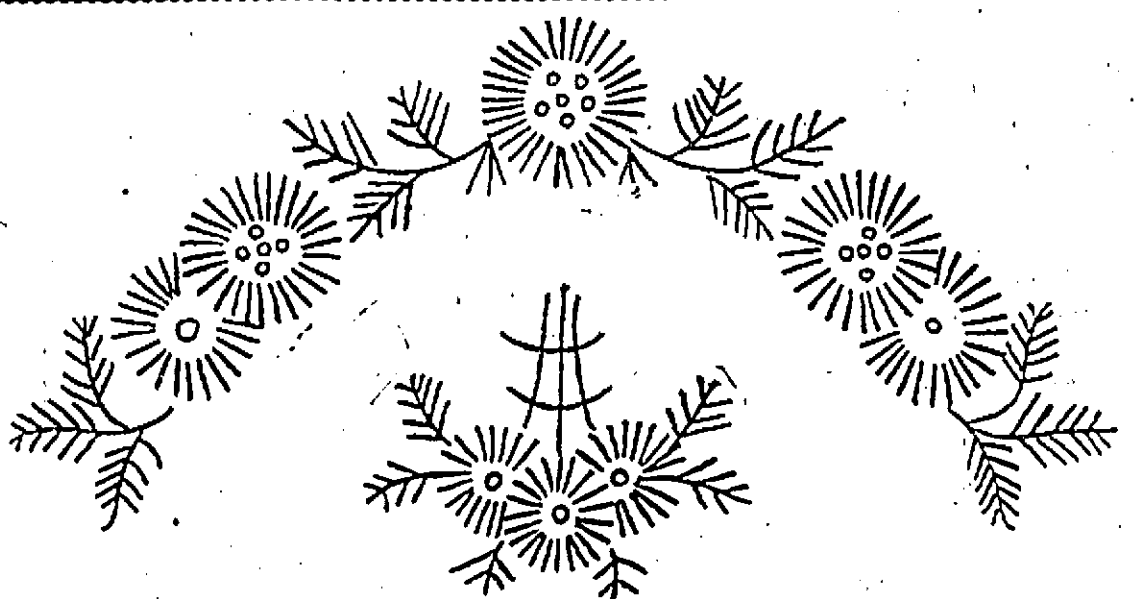

The Proof is in Janesville Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Janesville citizen is in itself strong proof for Janesville people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

There is a Janesville citizen who testified years ago that Donnan's Kidney Pills relieved sick kidneys and now states the cure was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

Mrs. Joseph Gower, 302 Eastern Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "The benefit I received from Donnan's Kidney Pills when I used them some years ago has been permanent. I willingly confirm my former endorsement of this remedy. I was afflicted with kidney complaint for several weeks and was feeling miserable in every way when a friend advised me to try Donnan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at The People's Drug Company and the contents of three boxes sufficed to rid me of my trouble. I never fail to advise a trial of Donnan's Kidney Pills whenever I hear anyone complaining of weak kidneys."

"Drinking Men Unreliable are Being Relegated to the Lowest Ranks of Labor"

The above statement from the head of one of the greatest industries of this country speaks the attitude of many other similar concerns toward drinking employees. "They are unreliable"—relegated to the lowest ranks of labor. But this condition is being rapidly changed. The advent of Dr. B. E. Neal's treatment for the liquor habit is bringing about better conditions, and the results of this great treatment are being daily augmented by the establishment of Neal Institutes in all the leading cities of the world for the administration to those who cannot break themselves of the habit without medical help. Hundreds of drinking men are daily taking advantage of the opportunity to be rid forever of the habit which is certain to rob them of social and business standing and all that they hold dear in the world and result in a disgraceful death and a miserable memory to those left behind. If you are a drinking man, think this over. If you are a friend of a man who drinks, don't give up hope; don't lose interest in the one who no doubt is worth saving—even though he may have descended to the gutter. Investigate the Neal Treatment today. The Neal treatment is composed of pure, harmless vegetable medicines and is always administered internally—never by hypodermic injections. A cure is certain and complete. The Neal treatment is administered in a modern, home-like building known as the Neal Institute at Milwaukee. Complete information will be furnished upon request by mail or telegram. Address The Neal Institute, 411 Cass St., Milwaukee, Wis.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—There is often quite a difference between LOVING and BEING LOVED.

The Girl from His Town

by Marie Van Vorst.
ILLUSTRATIONS BY M. G. KETNER.

The tide of life rolled slowly in this quiet part of the city, and as Blair sat there under the window there passed a phylar playing a shrill, sweet tune. It was so different from any of the loud metropolitan clamors, with which his ears were full, that he got up, walked to the window and leaned out. It was a pastoral that met his eyes. A man piping, followed by little pattering goats; the primitive, unlooked-for picture caught his fixed attention, and, just then, opposite the Quail, two women passed—dower set.

"Why," said Ruggles quietly, "I told her you were poor, and she turned you down."

There, their baskets bright with crocuses and gladioli. The bright picture touched him and something of the spring-like beauty that the day wore and that dwelt in the May light, soothed him as nothing had for many hours.

He paid his bill, took courage, picked up his hat and gloves and stick and walked out briskly, crossing the bridge to the Rue de Rivoli, determined that night should not fall until he found the woman he sought. Nor did it, though the afternoon wore on and Dan, pursuing his old trail, wandered from worldly meeting place to worldly meeting place. Finally, toward six o'clock, he saw the lengthening shadows steal into the woods of the Bois de Boulogne, and in one of the smaller alleys, where the green-trunked trees of the forest were full of purple shadows and yellow sun discs, flickering down, he picked up a small iron chair and sat himself down, with a long sigh, to rest.

While he sat there watching the end of the alley as it gave out into the broader road, a beautiful red motor rolled up to the junction of the two ways and Letty Lane, in a summer frock, got out alone. She had a flowing white veil around her head and a flowing white scarf around her shoulders. As the day on the Thames, she was all in white—like a dove. But this time her costume was vivid and picturesque by the coral parasol she carried, a pair of coral-colored kid shoes, around her neck and falling on her chest, she wore his coral beads. He saw that he observed her face before she did him. All this Dan saw before he dashed into the road, came up to her with something like a cry on his lips, bearded, for his hat and his stick and his gloves were by his chair in the woods.

Letty Lane's hands went to her heart and her face took on a deadly pallor. She did not seem glad to see him. Out of his passionate description of the hours that he had been through, of how he thought and waited and felt, the actress made what she could, listening to him as they both stood there under the shadows of the green trees. Scanning her face for some sign that she loved him, for it was all he cared for, Dan saw no such indication there. He finished with:

"You know what Ruggles told you was a lie. Of course, I've got money enough to give you everything you want. He's a lunatic and ought to be shut up."

"It may have been a lie, all right," she said with forced indifference. "I've had time to think it over. You are too young. You don't know what you want." She stopped his protestations. "Well, then, I am too old and I don't want to be tied down."

When he pressed her to tell him whether or not she had ceased to care for him, she shook her head slowly, marking on the ground the truth. With the end of her coral parasol, he had been obliged to take her back to the red motor, but before they were in earshot of her servants, he said:

"Now, you know just what you have done to me, and Ruggles between you. For my father's sake and the thing I believed in I've kept pretty straight as things go. He nodded at her with boyish egotism, throwing all the blame on her. "I want you to understand that from now, right now, I'm going to the dogs just as fast as I can get there, and it won't be a very gratifying result to anybody that ever cared."

going to tackle Ruggles."

"Why, what's poor Mr. Ruggles got to do with it?"

Dan cried scornfully: "For God's sake, don't keep this up! You know the rot he told you? I made him confess. He has had this mania all along about money being a handicap; he was bent on trying this game with some girl to see how it worked." He continued more passionately. "I don't care a rap what you marry me for, Letty, or what you have done or been. I think you're perfect and I'll make you the happiest woman in the world."

She said: "Hush, hush. Listen, dear; listen, little boy. I am awfully sorry, but it won't do. I never thought it would. You'll get over it all right, though you don't, you can't believe me now. I can't be poor, you know; I really couldn't be poor."

He interrupted roughly: "Who says you'll be? What are you talking about? Why, I'll cover you with jewels, sweetheart, if I have to rip the earth open to get them out."

She understood that Dan believed Ruggles' story, to have been a cock-and-bull one.

"You talk as though you could buy me, Dan. Wait, listen." She put him back from her. "Now, if you won't be quiet, I'm going to stop my car."

He repeated: "Tell me, are you alone in Paris? Tell me. For three days I have wandered and searched for you everywhere; I have hardly eaten a thing. I don't believe I have slept a wink." And he told her of his weary search.

She listened to him, part of the time her white-gloved hand giving itself up to the bow; part of the time both hands folded together and away from him, her arms crossed on her breast, her small shoes of coral kid tapping the floor of the car. Thus they rolled leisurely along the road by the Bois.

"Are you alone in Paris, Letty?" And she said: "Oh, what a bore you are! You're the most obstinate creature. Well, I am alone, but that has nothing to do with you."

A glorious light broke over his face; his relief was tremendous. "Oh, thank God!" he breathed. "Poniatowsky!"—and she said his name with difficulty—"is coming to-night from Carlsbad."

The boy threw back his bright head and laughed wildly.

"Curse him! The very name makes me want to commit a crime. He will go over my body to you. You hear me, Letty. I mean what I say."

People had already remarked them as they passed. The actress was too well known to pass unobserved, but she was indifferent to their curiosity or to the existence of anyone but this excited boy.

Blair, who had not opened a paper since he came to Paris, did not know that Letty Lane's flight from London had created a scandal in the theatrical world, that her manager was suing her, and that to be seen with her driving in the Bois was a conspicuous thing indeed. She thought of it, however.

ened you. But you drive me mad."

Without further word he got out and left her agitated, leaning toward him, and Blair, less pale and thoroughly the man, lifted his hat to her and, with unusual grace, bowed good-night and good-by. Then, rushing as he had come, he walked off down through the alleys, his gray figure in his gray clothes disappearing through the vista of meeting trees.

For a moment she stared after him, her eyes fastened on the tall, slender, beautiful young man. Blair's fire and ardor, his fresh youthfulness, his protection and his chivalry, his ardent devotion, touched her profoundly. Tears fell, and one splashed on her white glove. Was he really going to ruin his life? The old ballad, "The Earl of Moray," ran through her head:

"And long may his lady look from the castle wall."

There's a Certain Kind of Boosting that lies at the root of all successful undertakings. On this page are listed some of the men and women who are doing this kind of boosting for Janesville and her progress. They have cast their lot with the Bower City. Janesville's future determines their future. Their future determines Janesville's future. Any boosting that is done with them as the "boosted," works towards the better city.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

The idle rich are trifling folk whose only end and aim is just to make this life a joke and play it as a game; they bore themselves the long year through with pleasures staid and coarse, and when there's nothing else to do they seek for those sporty guys who idle laugh at love and law, and try to show that marriage ties are fatters made of straw. To swap their wives they go to court and keep their lawyers hoarse; there's something wrong with jays whose sport is hustling for divorce. The idle rich have never earned a dollar of their pile aren't worth the gasoline they've burned in searching still they seek, at ring or racing course and go to court three times a week to wait for a divorce. One honest working man who comes with shovel in his hand, outvalues all the glided bums in this wealth-ridden land. The man who has his work to do remains a moral crew, and ought to shame the idle crew whose pastime is divorce.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

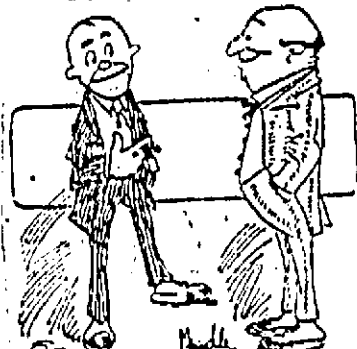

By H. L. RANN.

THE GOOD FELLER.

If the man who comes down to breakfast and kicks about everything from the weather to the omelet could have his morning read to him by a photographer after dinner at his club, when he feels as playful as an ardent aspirer at a corn husking bee, he would swoon up faster than the traveling salesman who discovers that he has mistaken the proprietor for a clerk. The real suit of this crusty earth is the man who can look sour coffee and burned flapjacks in the eye on an empty stomach and refrain from musing on the atmosphere with a low grade of indignation. The good feller, who can crack a joke in the face of bacon that you couldn't tell from charcoal on a hot, and eggs that were packed for release in 1877, is the boy who makes the breakfast table look like a mission in the frat house. The ground who makes life a burden for everybody on the lot, from the house down to the hired girl, has started more than all the booze and high-pressure calico from the time that De-llah gave the lamented Samson the double cross with a pair of barber's shears. The girl who picks out a husband with a bubbling smile reservoir will never have to set up a plea for alimony and the custody of her offspring.

GETS THE UMBRELLAS.

"Sawone is a man of great concentration of mind. 'Do you mean that he always remembers to pick up the umbrella he sets down?' 'More than that. He remembers to pick up an umbrella every when he has not set one down.'"

TO BRING THEM UP WELL.

"NURSE GIRL—'Oh, ma'am, what shall I do?' The wine has fallen down the child's throat. 'Dear me, how annoying! Just go into the library and get the last number of Modern Mother's Magazine; it contains an article on how to bring up children.'"

LITTLE SURPRISES.

"You did perfectly right in benching me, umpire; I was making a blame fool of myself." "All I wanted was the postage stamp, Mr. Hinker, but while I am here I may as well get a 'bottle of perfume and some face powder.' "There's no occasion for your offering me any money, sir; your ordinance will go through on its merits." "I see by your scales, ma'am, that this chunk of tea weighs 55 pounds. I'll have to take it back to the wagon and chip a little off." "Your auto doesn't need any overhauling, Mr. Crankley; it's in perfect order. No, sir; no charge." "As the church happens to have a large fund in its treasury, brethren, no collection will be taken up this morning."

Change of Heart.

"What did my man say to you when you came in?" Inquired Johnny to his friend who had come to tea. "She said she was very pleased to see me." "I'm glad," said Johnny in a relieved tone. "Cos she said this morning she hoped you wouldn't come."—Stray Stories.

Humming Her.

Lady—Now, caddy, I wish you to be extremely careful. When you come to a crossing you must wait until the policeman tells you to go on; and if the streets are slippery you must drive very slowly.

Caddy—All right, mum; I'll be very careful, mum. And in case of a haecident, mum, which 'orapital would you like to be took to?—Tit-Bits.

Secret Out at Last.

"Why do you have those glass cases with the ax, hammer, crowbar and so forth on these cars?" asked the traveler.

"Oh, those are put there in case any one wants a window open," replied the facetious man.—Red Hens.

Entirely Different.

"They tell me your son is studying music."

"Yes; he is taking lessons." "What is he going to be?" "He is going to be a fiddler, but at first we had hopes of making a violinist out of him."

How Nice.

"Mayhelle, have you heard the latest? Professor Wombut says that we send out psychic waves." "How nice. I shall have mine cancelled."

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Janesville Gazette, October 25, 1871.

The Chicago fire was not enough to effect a fusion of the two political parties in that city. The county central committee of each political party are arranging a ticket for the ensuing election irrespective of party.

The Green Bay Gazette says a man from the burned district north of that city, reports ten acres of potatoes were roasted in the ground. They are in good condition for eating.

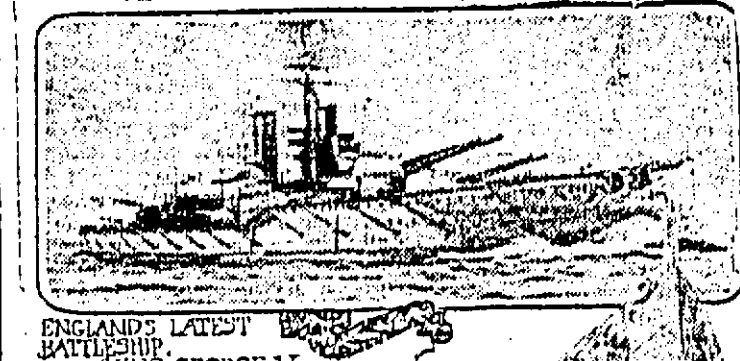

York State on Fire.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Extensive fires are prevailing in the swamps and woods of Monroe, Niagara, Genesee, Wayne and Seneca county. The wind has been blowing a perfect gale since yesterday, and much anxiety is felt throughout the burning district. The smoke obscures the sun to such an extent that lights have to be used in this city during the day. Reports are constantly coming in of fires in all directions.

Election day falls on the seventh of November this year.

The Chippewa Herald of the 21st inst., says: On Tuesday evening, Hon. Charles G. Williams of Janesville, addressed a large audience in Mitchell's Hall, on the issues of the day. He reviewed the political history of the Democratic candidate for governor, for some years past; spoke of the great reforms that had been enacted by the Republican party since its organization; picked into Andy Johnson and the bread and butter brigade, (this pleased us, but it seemed to worry Bingham, Pound and others); and closed up with a beautiful description of Western Wisconsin and its prospects. Senator Williams is one of the best speakers of the state; an agreeable, social politician; and he made many friends here by his pleasant manner and eloquent oratory.

A light rain fell this morning and threatening clouds have obscured the sun during a greater portion of the day.

ENGLAND'S LATEST BATTLESHIP.

KING GEORGE V.

ENGLAND'S LATEST AND BIGGEST BATTLESHIP.

"King George the Fifth." England's latest and largest battleship as it will appear, when ready for the sea. The lower pictures show the launch of this ship at Portsmouth, England, on October 9th. It was taken just as the huge bulk struck the water.

The Clever and the Wise.

To clever people almost everything is laughable—to wise people, hardly anything.—Coehe.

THE ONLY WAY.

While walking out with Mary I dropped right on the ground. Asked her to wed, 'cause in the house her brother's always 'round.

Find the brother.

American "Militarism."

That America as a nation is getting more and more imbued with what the Germans call "militarism" is shown in many ways. One indication of this is given by a huge sign hanging outside the car barns at Seventh avenue and Fifth street, which reads: "Recruiting Station for Motorists and Conductors."—N. Y. Press.

The Starfish Analyzed.

The starfish, one of the lowest forms of life, has on its back about 25,000 jaws or hands arranged in rings and bands. By the aid of these it captures many animals for food, even quick, active fish of considerable size. Prof. Jennings of Johns Hopkins has photographed the starfish at dinner, and has discovered that even this low form of animal life has "habits."

Wise Rule in Austria.

The government of Austria makes special inducements to farmers who will reclaim water lands and make use of them.

A Permanent Position.

There was not even standing room in the six o'clock crowded car, but one more passenger, a young woman, wedged her way along just inside the doorway. Each time the car took a sudden lurch forward she fell helplessly back, and three times she landed in the arms of a large, comfortable man on the back platform. The third time it happened he said quietly: "Hadden't you better stay here?"

Horse Flesh as Food.

Horse flesh has been prized as food in China for six centuries, but in Europe was first eaten 100 years ago by the Danes. At Liege, Belgium, 2,000 horses were slaughtered in 1905, and the rapidly increasing demand promises to open a new market for American horses. Only young animals are sent to the slaughter houses.

Must Practice the Right.

To be engaged in opposing wrong affairs, under the conditions of our mental constitution, but slender guarantee for being right.—Gladstone.
